HbA1C (Glycosylated Hemoglobin)

Clinical Significance :

Hemoglobin A1c (HbA1c) level reflects the mean glucose concentration over the previous period (approximately 8-12 weeks) and provides a much better indication of long-term glycemic control than blood and urinary glucose determinations. American Diabetes Association (ADA) include the use of HbA1c to diagnose diabetes, using a cutpoint of 6.5%. The ADA recommends measurement of HbA1c 3-4 times per year for type 1 and poorly controlled type 2 diabetic patients, and 2 times per year for well-controlled type 2 diabetic patients) to assess whether a patient's metabolic control has remained continuously within the target range. Falsely low HbA1c results may be seen in conditions that shorten erythrocyte life span, and may not reflect glycemic control in these cases accurately.
